Rubber Companies
Quake Insurance
Fraudulent Trading

A Number of rubber companies have been coming out with their annual reports and balance sheets in recent weeks, while, as previously recorded in these columns, a good few are distributing interim dividends to their stockholders. Among the rubber estates that came out last week with their annual reports are the Kota Bahroe and the Shanghai Pahang, while the Semambu Estate has joined in the list of those that are paying interim dividends to stockholders. The distribution by this company is at the rate of five tael cents per share, payable on October 30. The net profit for the past year was Tls 4,683.29 to which had to be added the balance from 1921 of Tls 46,600.52. A dividend last year of ten per cent was paid shareholdeers and Tls. 40.974 carried forward. This company is producing rubber at a f.o.b. cost of 9.28d. per pound and with rubber selling today at around 1s. 3d. per pound the profits are therefore handsome. The estimated crop for 1923 under restriction is 158 264 pounds, while last year it amounted to 164,105 pounds against 170,102 pounds in 1921.

The Kota Bahroe Estates report a profit on the past year's working of Tls 31,819.87, which deducted from the debit balance of Tls 70,083.02 brought forward from the previous year, leaves a debit of Tls 38,263.15 to be carried forward. The actual loss on the previous year's working amounted to Tls 32,576.40 and this added to Tls 37,506.62 brought forward previously, made the total debit last year stand at Tls. 70,183.02. Compared with the Kota Bahroe Estate the Shanghai Pahang's profits for the last official year were smaller, the profit being Tls 9,672.65, which after deduction of the debit balance of Tls 1,213.47 permits of Tls8,459.18 being carried to next year's accounts. This company's cost of production is 1s. 1.6d. per pound.

INSURANCE IN JAPAN

It would be interesting to know what exactly is the loss that the British fire insurance companies suffered by the great fire and earthquake in Japan. It is known that the Japanese insurance companies re-insured a great portion of their risks with the British companies. The percentage of losses to premiums to British offices last year was no more than 58 percent, whereas in the year of the San Francisco disaster it ran well over 100 per cent and made a dreadful mess of both British and American fire insurance accounts.

For instance, the American experience last year was unfavorable, while in the case of many British offices the experience was better than the experience of 1921. The total deficiency in America of 2.3 percent. was due as much to the increased - scale of expenses, namely 44.1 percent. as it was to the somewhat high ratio of fire claims to premiums. The total fire wastage in the United States, as returned by the National Board of Fire Underwriters, was 521 million gold dollars; in other words, actually more than the wastage of 1906, the year of the San Francisco earthquake and conflagration.

It is not known as yet what attitude the Japanese and British and other insurance companies will adopt as regards the whole problem. It is practically impossible for all the Japanese offices to pay more than a very limited proportion of the claims by way of compensation. It is doubtful if with all the government assistance that is talked about the companies in Japan could be better off in that respect. A spirit of self-sacrifice is asked for from the Japanese insurance offices; it will be extremely interesting to watch developments in this direction.

FRAUD PREVENTION

The formation of an association for the prevention of fraudulent trading which was recently announced in England will be read with great interest not only in Shanghai but in all parts of the Orient. The various organisations of manufacturers, merchants and retailers in the textile trades in England are beginning to get to grips with the problem of the fraudulent traders who during the past two or three years are reputed to have defrauded manufacturers of millor pounds.

The British association is a representative one and covers the whole field thoroughly, representatives being drawn from every textile trade. A constitution has been drawn up and adopted and among the announced objects of the association in the prevention of fraudulent trading is the

Admiral Washington Relieves Admiral Anderson

NO SALUTES

Ceremonial Takes Place At 9.45

Admiral Thomas Washington, who arrived in Shanghai on the President Cleveland, will hoist his flag on the U.S.S. Huron and take command of the U. S. Asiatic fleet at 9.45 o'clock this morning, relieving Admiral E. A. Anderson.

Admiral Anderson, whose time on the Asiatic station is up, will return to the United States on the President Taft on Saturday, accompanied by Captain Stearns who has been commander of the Huron, flagship of the fleet, and chief-of-staff.

The new Commander-in-Chief will go alongside the Huron at 9.45 this morning and be met at the gangway by Admiral Anderson. Boarding the flagship he will be officially introduced to the ship's officers, as well as the captains of other American warships in port, lined up according to rank and in dress uniform, and then conducted about the ship on a tour of inspection, visiting the men in their quarters and being also introduced to them.

CHANGING FLAGS

Admiral Anderson will then read his orders relieving him of duty on this station and his flag will be hauled down. Admiral Washington will respond by reading his orders placing him in command of the fleet and his flag will be raised on the Huron.

If the ceremonial occured at sea seventeen guns would be fired as Admiral Anderson's flag was hauled down and seventeen more when Admiral Washington's was hoisted. The commander of the senior ship present would also order a salute fired in return to the Huron's guns, but as the ceremonial is occuring in port no salutes will be fired.

Admiral Anderson will then take official leave of the ship and come ashore until he sails on the Taft for home, and Admiral Washington will take command.

Captain Stearns, who for some time has been both commander of the Huron and chief-of-staff, was relieved of the command of the Huron by Captain. Kimberly at the time of the earthquake in Japan when the double two was too severe. He remained as chief-of-staff, however, and today will be relieved by Captain Fenner, who accompanied Admiral Washington from the States.

FROM WASHINGTON

Admiral Washington comes to the China station from the Navy Department in Washington where, for the past four years, he has been Chief of the Bureau of Navigation. He is a native of Goldsboro, North Carolina, and graduated from Annapolis in 1887. He advanced through the various ranks to become a temporary Rear Admiral in August, 1918.

During his service he has served aboard many of the Navy's famous ships and has been with the Coast Survey, Navy Department, Hydrographic office, served with the British Grand fleet in the North Sea during the war, and commanded the third division of the Atlantic fleet before going to head the Bureau of Navigation.

He is the holder of several medals, is an Episcopalian, and a Mason.

France Silent On British Conference

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Oct. 9.—Silence is being maintained on the subject of the deliberations of the British Imperial Conference. The Temps learns that today's discussions did not touch on reparations, but on the question of the diplomatic independence of the Dominions.

The journal recalls that Canada obtained in 1920 the right to have her own Ambassador at Washington in connection with the signing of the American-Canadian Treaty. This controversy also interests Ireland.

To Take Civil Governor's Deposition In Kearny Arms Case At Hangchow

Case Adjourned After Defense Witnesses Testify And Judge Lobringier Over-rules Motion For Dismissal

Faced once more with the impossibility of bringing important witnesses for the defense into an American court the trial of Captain L. D. Kearny in the United States Court on charges of importing arms and munitions from Gensan, Korea, was adjourned yesterday afternoon pending the taking of depositions from Civil Governor Chang of Chekiang and Magistrate Hu of Hangchow.

A similar situation arose in the first trial in which Captain Kearny was charged with importing arms from Russian ships at Woosung and decision in the case is still held up pending the taking of the deposition of Admiral Tu, Commander-in-Chief of the Chinese Navy.

The adjournment followed the presentation of the case for the defense by Mr. C. S. Franklin after Judge Charles S. Lobingier had over ruled his motion to dismiss on the grounds that the prosecution had not proved their case. Judge Lobingier, in ruling on the motion for dismissal, held that the authorities cited by Mr. Franklin in support of his contention that the burden of proving whether or not the Civil Governor of Chekiang had not authority to purchase arms and munitions, was a matter for the prosecution, upheld the contra contention of U. S. District Attorney Leonard G. Husar that the preponderance of opinion in all such similar cases was that the burden of proof was on the defense.

THE RULINGS

Judge Lobingier, at the resumption of the hearing yesterday morning, gave his ruling on the point from the bench, as follows:

"At the close of the prosecution's evidence the defendant's counsel presented an oral motion to dismiss on the ground that the prosecution had failed to negative the exceptions recited in the Treaty and particularly the exception of "sale to Chinese duly authorised to purchase them." In support of their contention that the burden rests upon the prosecution to negative this exception defendant's counsel relies upon a work (1) citing four decisions, all from State courts and constituting but an insignificant portion of the total number of decisions on the subject. The work in question mentions but one exception to the rule announced—i.e., where the facts constituting the exception in the statute are peculiarly within the knowledge of defendant. That exception has been recognised and applied by this Court (2). But there is another qualification, quite as important, which the work cited fails to notice, viz., as stated by our Supreme Court

When the exception or proviso is in a subsequent substantive clause, the case contemplated in the enacting or general clause may be fully stated without negativing the exception or proviso, as a prima facie case is stated, and it is for the party for whom matter of excuse is furnished by the statute

SPEAKERS PRAISE FINE WORK DONE BY NAVY Y.M.C.A.

Many Attend Official Opening Of New Building Here

With many prominent Naval and diplomatic representatives present the formal opening exercises of the splendid new Navy Y.M.C.A. on the corner of Hongkong and Szechuen Roads were held yesterday morning following the raising of an American flag to the top of the new structure by a detachment of sailors from the American warships in port.

Following the flag-raising a reception was held for the visitors with Admiral and Mrs. E. A. Anderson, Rear Admiral and Mrs. W. W. Phelps and prominent Shanghai people in the receiving line, after which the exercises were conducted.

The orchestra of the Commander-in-Chief of the U. S. Asiatic fleet opened the program with music after which Mr. W. W. Lockwood of the Navy 'Y', who presided, said that the occasion marked the realisation of ten year's dreams for it was that long ago that the 'Y' first secured permission to station an Association man on the flagship of the Asiatic fleet. A little later, Mr. Ben Swartz, came to Shanghai at the invitation of various American organisations and established rooms on Broadway. The growth of the Association and its work, he said, had culminated in

Well Known Actresses Death Follows Operation

Betty Barnicoat, who in private life was Mrs. Bernard Nedell, wife of Bernard Nedell, leading man for the Frawley players who gave two seasons in Shanghai recently, died in Los Angeles on September 17, according to word received in mail on board the President Cleveland.

Mrs. Nedell's death followed an operation in a Los Angeles hospital. She took ill while returning to the United States from the Far East and was confined to Queens Hospital in Honolulu for several days while in Hawaii.

Mrs. Nedell was well known in Shanghai because of her splendid acting in the plays produced here by the Frawley company and during their engagement here Mrs. Nedell, with Mr. Nedell, attended a number of social parties given by well known Shanghai people.

MASS MEETING SCORES TSAO KUN IN RESOLUTIONS

Gathering Of 6,000 At Drill Ground Despite Prohibiting Order

Despite the prohibitory order by the military authorities of Shanghai, a mass meeting was held at the Ho Chun Yin, formerly drill ground, of the Nantao District yesterday afternoon to protest against the election of Tsao Kun as president. A number of resolutions were passed by the 6,000 people present, among whom were many girls, students and laborers.

The meeting went on record to ask the anti-Chihli factions to organise and remove the national humiliation by declaring war on Tsao, to declare the new Constitution promulgated yesterday of Peking null and void and to repudiate the authority of the Peking Parliament since its members had accepted money for the election.

The gathering, though addressed by many radical speakers, was orderly, the program being carried out without any friction while the gendarmes and soldiers stood by to maintain order without trying to interfere with the proceedings.

Seated among the speakers on the platform was a grotesque figure, dressed up like Tsao Kun in full dress, wearing all the high decorations of the Republic. When each resolution was passed, he would bow to the gathering and say "I accept the verdict of

CABINET IN BERLIN GETS DEMANDS OF RUHR CHIEFS

Industrialists Seeking Compensation For Seizures

FIGHT COAL TAX

Herr Stinnes Assumes Leadership In Movement

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Oct. 9.—A group of Ruhr industrialists, headed by Herr Hugo Stinnes, who interviewed General Degoutte, have submitted to the Government of the Reich the following demands:

Compensation for coal confiscated since the occupation of the Ruhr and for the forcibly levied coal tax;

Abolition of the coal tax in the Ruhr;

That the guarantee for all future deliveries of reparations coal shall be placed in their hands;

Preferential treatment of the Ruhr in the supply of raw materials and food stuff;

Extension of the working day to 8½ hours underground and 10 hours above ground.

The Industrialists also ask the Government's attitude towards the creation of a railway company in the occupied territory in which the industry of the Rhineland and France would participate.

Herr Stinnes asked for a reply by noon today. The Cabinet is discussing the demand.

(Reuter's Service)

Brussels, Oct. 9.—The German Charge d'Affaires told the Foreign Minister, M. Jaspar, this morning that the German Government wished to collaborate in the resumption of work in the Ruhr and to resume deliveries of reparations coal. M. Jaspar promised to communicate with the French Government, but said that in any case the German Government must promise the industrialists, who are ready to supply coal, that it will pay for the coal, and that German railwaymen must be ordered to return to work.

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Oct. 9.—In 1921 the annual production of French metal foundries totalled 300,000 tons. This total increased in 1922 to 420,000 tons. The total in February, 1923, as a result of the occupation of the Ruhr was 305,000 tons, and the monthly production of the foundries reached 447,000 tons in June and July and 486,000 tons in August. Passive resistance therefore, the Matin points out, has had no effect on French foundry production.

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Oct. 9.—Yesterday Dr. Stresemann obtained a vote of confidence in the Reichstag which approved his declarations. The Nationalists and the Communists voted against the Cabinet. The Reichstag postponed the debate on the powers requested by the Chancellor.

The Journal des Debats declares that in the course of the debate in the Reichstag no speaker accused the Cuno Cabinet of having entered upon a bad policy, but it was merely regretted that the policy had not succeeded.

The French press favorably welcomes the agreement concluded between the Rheinische and Phoenix Stahlwerke and the French authorities under reserve of the approval of the Reparations Commission. The Temps declares that it is equitable for all the Allies and that it is also advantageous for the population of the occupied territory. The Otto Wolff group has given an example for the resumption of production and thereby to procure bread for a part of the working population. The Paris newspapers express the hope that this agreement marks the first step toward the re-establishment of a normal situation.

Finding A House Is Bad Enough, But Moving, Gosh!

By Irene Corbally Kuhn

Shanghai
Moving-Day Night

Dear Leinani:

We have a house, no fooling this time. But now that we've got it we don't know what to do with it, for the big question agitating the present gloomy population of the same is to dry or not to dry.

Perhaps because this is decidedly a wet town the paints, varnishes and whatnots of interior decorating adhere with curse-inspiring tenacity to their natural liquid state and refuse to dry unless personally fanned, coaxed and otherwise wheedled.

At any rate we're here, entirely surrounded by large patches of damp walls and ceilings, and floors as sticky as a baby's face after a hand-to-mouth engagement with a lollypop.

In company with our various earthly belongings we are parked here on the top floor of our just-acquired home in precisely the same relation to the rest of the house as is the one gob of whipped cream to the jello underneath. We have piled up the effects in one dry spot, mounted the heap and at present are surveying the large expanse of damp, vacant rooms from the fastness of Trunk Island.

SLIDE AND DOWN

Like the whipped cream we can do but one thing and only in one direction—slide and down. The perils of a floor in the process of acquiring a polish are as numerous as those that beset the newly rich working toward the same shining end.

So much for the prologue to a moving tale, literally and emotionally speaking. Since we came to China and took up the enervating all-around sport of house-hunting, we can understand why the landlords here require one to exercise a fountain pen in signaturing a lease only once in two years. The Shanghai landlords are angels of pity. The more charitable among them say "sign here" only once every decade or so, for moving in China is enough to make a strong man weak and a weak homo pass out of the procession on crutches.

First you catch your house. After you have snared the thing you approach it gingerly and try to tame it so that it will be habitable. The wild kalsomined salmon pink and grass green walls must be subdued by the application of soothing new coats of paler paint. The shaggy floors must be toned down with applications of stain and "finish"—and that's the sticker. For the guaranteed-to-dry-in-30-minutes stain is an imaginative byproduct of the paintseller's brain.

WALKING THE PLANK

For the first week we will be compelled to "walk the plank" every time we pass from room to another. The plank covers the few square inches of floor that the coolie has sat up all night fanning dry. Nature will have to take its course with the rest of the walking space and Nature, like everything else in the Orient, moves with the speed of an old-fashioned accommodation train stopping at all stations and pausing in between.

Tonight promises to be darker than usual unless we can scare up some candles. We made the mistake of moving on a holiday (an error hardly to be avoided since every other day really is a holiday of one sort or another here) without first assuring ourselves that the "guaranteed" wiring of the Way Off Electric Company and Fixtures had passed the Board of Censorship of the Municipal Council who paid us an official call yesterday.

MERE DETAILS

The fixtures which were all in, after a fashion, looked promising enough. What matter if the dining room drop light supposed to shed a mellow glow through a silk shade a scant foot and a half above the table hugged the ceiling? Or if the living room light designed to glow inside a frosted ceiling bowl escaped the floor by a foot or so? What matter, further, if the side lights were as switchless as the Danderine sisters, necessitating a complete removal of shade and bulb in order to turn 'em off? These were minor matters. What did faze us slightly, however, was that the inspector told us he was very sorry for us but yes, we could have no light tonight since the circuit fuse was omitted from the electrical contractor's little job of work.

Oh hum! Many an actor's child has slept in father's trunk. Our little Sarah Bernhardt will be cradled among the miscellaneous litter in the top tray tonight.

I am going out to buy some furniture tomorrow. In the meantime we are seeking what repose we can get in the cold embrace of the porcelain bathtub.

Yours not too hopefully,
IRENE

TSAO KUN IS INAUGURATED AS HEAD OF GOVERNMENT

Only Few Admitted To Ceremonies At Peking

RITES POMPOUS

Tribute Of Emperors Is Paid To New President

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Oct. 10.—The streets were illuminated last night and beflagged and heavily guarded this morning in anticipation of the arrival of the new President from Paotingfu for the inauguration ceremony. Extra troops were brought in yesterday from Paotingfu.

Marshal Tsao Kun arrived at seven o'clock this morning and proceeded to the Presidential Palace where the inaugural ceremony was held at nine o'clock. He left for the Parliament at ten, where he took part in the promulgation of the Constitution, afterwards taking the Presidential oath.

(Exclusive China Press)

Peking, Oct. 10.—Utmost precautions were taken for the safety of Tsao Kun on his trip to Peking. No less than 40,000 troops lined the Peking-Hankow line—special headquarters for the soldiers being established in Fengtai, the strategic point where Chang Tso-lin started his retreat two years ago.

Communications were cut from the West Station to the Presidential Palace as well as to the Parliament. At the station, only the cabinet ministers and vice ministers and Generals Feng Yu-hsiang and Wang Huai-ching were allowed to see him. Tsao was motored to the Hsien Ching Liu Palace under heavy guard in an armored car at seven o'clock. At nine o'clock, he assumed the presidency in the Hsui Jen Tang with elaborate military pomp but few witnesses. Only Chihli leaders and ministers were permitted to attend.

Promptly at 11:30, he took his oath of office after promulgating the new National Constitution and returned to his palace at 12:30 o'clock. A picture was taken with the Parliamentarians who elected him. Over all the passages, a coat of yellow earth was spread in his honor, an honor which is only conferred upon emperors and new presidents.

From Paoting, he was accompanied by Wang Yu-chi, who will be his official secretary and Wang Cheng-ping, Governor of Chihli.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Oct. 9.—The House of Representatives today decided to terminate its session tomorrow and to hold only extraordinary meetings after that date.

The House also passed a resolution asking the Government to negotiate with France for the restoration of Kwangchowwan.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 9.—The Diplomatic Correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says that opinions widely differ in diplomatic circles as to whether Marshal Tsao Kun will be able to re-establish the authority of the Chinese Government. Too much should not be made of the fact the many of the votes cast for him were secured by bribery. The Correspondent expresses the opinion that restoration of the Presidency may strengthen the American desire to hold a commission on foreign extra-territorial privileges in China by the end of the year, which was foreshadowed in the Washington Treaties, even if the result of its labors remain in the academic domain for the present.

(Eastern News Agency)

Peking, Oct. 9.—This afternoon at 5 o'clock, the Portuguese minister the Doyen of the Diplomatic Corps, called on Dr. Wellington Koo, Chinese Minister for Foreign Affairs, at the Waichiaopu. It is reported that in the course of the interview, the Portuguese Minister conferred with Dr. Koo with regard to the attitude to be taken by the Diplomatic Corps according to the decision of today's meeting, in connection with the assumption of the Presidency by Marshal Tsao Kun.

(Eastern News Agency)

Peking, Oct. 10.—At the constitutional meeting held this morning in the House of Representatives Mr. Wu Ching-lien, Speaker of the House, read the provisions of the newly drafted constitution and the meeting was duly adjourned at 11 a.m.

Shortly afterwards, a celebration in commemoration of the Anniversary of the Republic of China was held under the presidency of Mr. Wu Ching-lien.

Marshal Tsao Kun, the new President, in the meanwhile, held his inauguration ceremony in the President's Office at 9.30 a.m. and then proceeded amid strict precautions by military guards to the House of Representatives, where he made a declaration that he had assumed the presidentship through the election by Parliament and that he would observe the newly enacted constitution to the letter. The President left the house at 12.30 p.m.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Oct. 8.—According to a semi-official statement the first congratulatory message received by Marshal Tsao on his election was from General Wu Pei-fu. It is reported in other quarters, however, that this statement has merely been put forward for propaganda purposes.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 9.—The Daily Telegraph, in an editorial article, says that the election of Marshal Tsao Kun suggests that China is inclined to stand upon her ancient ways, whether good or evil, and the Powers which have covenanted rights in China will do well to scan closely the course of events in the immediate future. Marshal Tsao Kun has been thrust into this position by those who have little sympathy with European development in China and it remains for us to watch the results of this frankly iniquitous proceeding, for, the paper declares, there will be little in international politics during the coming year that will rival in importance the action which those behind Marshal Tsao Kun will persuade him to adopt.

Belleau Wood Consecrated As American Shrine

Mrs. James C. Frazer Belleau Wood

THOUSANDS of persons attended the consecration of the world-famous Belleau Wood, in France, as a permanent memorial to the American troops who fell there in the World War. The American flag was raised over the little patch of shell-wrecked woods as the French tricolor was lowered. The picture shows Marshal Ferdinand Foch, with his aide de camp, Captain L'Hopital, inspecting the United States Marines from the U. S. S. Pittsburgh, who represented the Marine Corps at the ceremonies. It was due to the untiring efforts of Mrs. James Carroll Frazer, of Washington, D. C. that the money was raised to buy Belleau Wood and preserve the sacred soil for America.

China's Constitution Is Promulgated At Peking

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Oct. 10.—The Constitution which is being promulgated this morning has taken several years to complete and contains nothing startling but is much in accordance with the Constitutions of other countries.

It consists of 13 Sections or chapters, in which there are 141 Articles.

The first Section states that the form of Government shall be a unified Republic, the 2nd Section that the sovereignty shall be vested in the people, and the 3rd Section that China's territory consists of all Chinese possessions.

Section 4 (Articles 4 to 21) deals with the rights, duties and privileges of citizens; Section 5 (Articles 22 to 38) with national powers over legislation, lands, mines, education, taxes, etc.; Section 6 (Articles 39 to 70) with the composition, powers, mode of election, etc., of Parliament: Section 7 (Articles 71 to 91) with the powers and duties of the President: Section 8 (Articles 92 to 96) with the Cabinet: Section 9 (Articles 97 to 102) with the judiciary: Section 10 (Articles 103 to 108) with the law: Section 11 (Articles 109 to 123) with the Budget: Section 12 (Articles 124 to 135) with local government: and Section 13 (Articles 136 to 141) with Constitutional amendments.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Oct. 9.—The National Constitution passed the third reading yesterday and will be proclaimed on Wednesday.

Today's speculation with regard to the new Premier favors Dr. W. W. Yen, who is expected to form a strong Cabinet, including Dr. Wellington Koo as Foreign Minister, Dr. Kao Ling-wei as Minister of the Interior, Mr. Wang Keh-ming as Minister of Finance and General Wang Chen-ping as Minister of War.

It is reported in Chinese circles that yesterday's meeting of the Diplomatic Body discussed the question of recognition of Marshal Tsao Kun as President, but did not come to a decision. They are also reported to have discussed the Lincheng Note and the railway guards proposal.

Cabinet In Berlin In Given Demands Of Ruhr Leaders

d'Affaires has informed M. Jasoar that the Government of the Reich is disposed to collaborate actively in the resumption of economic life in the Ruhr Basin and, specially, to resume [illegible] the deliveries in kind. In the name of the German Government he suggested a meeting of French, Belgian and German delegates to settle matters of detail for a general resumption.

According to the same report the Belgian Minister of Foreign Affairs replied that he would confer with the French Government. No demarche of this nature has been made at Paris, where the well-known point of view of the French Government is recalled, namely, that the resumption of work in the Ruhr is a local question to be settled on the spot.

As to the question of the resumption of deliveries in kind, when Germany has decided on the matter, the Reparations Commission is competent to receive a German communication on the subject, all the Allies being interested in this question. Moreover, it is learned from occupied Germany that the Harpener Consortium has informed the representatives of the Inter-Allied Mission of Control that the company is ready to resume deliveries under the heading of reparations and to assure itself the loading of stocks.

MINES OCCUPIED

The Freivogel and Gluckauf mines were occupied with a view to acquiring coal stocks without incident. Extraction was not interrupted and work continues normally everywhere.

The question of the length of the working day and the demands put forward by the proprietors of the Rhineland and Westphalia mines are causing keen anxiety among the German workers. A meeting of representatives of various miners', workers' and employees' associations in the Ruhr, held at Gelsenkirchen unanimously voted a resolution of protest, inviting the workers to insist on the clauses of the existing legal contracts.

The funeral of the killed in the September 30 incident at Duesseldorf took place today without incident. Several members of the Municipality made speeches.

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Oct. 9.—The German Charge d'Affaires has been instructed to inform M. Poincare that the German Government desires to discuss the question of a return to work in the Ruhr and resumption of reparation deliveries in kind.

A semiofficial French statement in that connection intimates that it is improbable that the French and Belgian Governments will agree to negotiate with other than the Ruhr authorities, employers and workers, but that when work is fully resumed it would be permissible for Dr. Stresemann to request to be heard by the Reparations Commission regarding a settlement of future reparations.

London, Oct. 10.—Reuter's Agency learns that the Imperial Conference will tomorrow give its attention to the position of the League of Nations in the affairs of Europe. The debate will be initiated by Lord Robert Cecil.

It is anticipated in Dominions circles that Lord Robert Cecil's speech and Marquess Curzon's reply to Monday's utterances will lead to a second vigorous debate.

SAY FAREWELL TO CORPS COLOR THIS AFTERNOON

Volunteers To Parade For Ceremonial At Polo Ground

A farewell "Troop" to the old Corps Color, borne by the Shanghai Volunteer Corps for more than sixty years, will be held this afternoon at the Polo ground, Race Course, at 4.30 o'clock.

The ceremonial parade should prove a very interesting affair and it is expected that a large number of spectators will be on hand.

Following the farewell to the old standard, the Chairman of the Council will present a new Color to the Corps.

The old Color was presented to the organisation by ladies of Shanghai during the Taiping Rebellion. It will be preserved by the Municipality, being hung in the Council Chamber.

IMMIGRATION PLAN SOUGHT BY CONFERENCE

Committee Will Be Appointed To Thresh Out Matter

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 9.—The Economic Conference has decided to establish a committee to enquire into the whole question of overseas settlement and to thresh out a profitable scheme.

Sir Philip Lloyd-Greame this afternoon opened the debate on preference which, he said, was the underlying principle of the Government, whose desire was that the Conference should work out practicable steps to improve production and trade prospect in all parts of the Empire. He unfolded the specific proposals which the British Government desired to make relating to dried fruits, sugar and tobacco.

Mr. William Ormsby-Gore expressed gratitude for the proposals, which would mean new hope for the Mauritius and the West Indies. He said with regard to tobacco that Nyasaland and Rhodesia would probably follow the line taken by South Africa. Reciprocity between the Crown Colonies and Dominions in this matter would be most beneficial.

Mr. C. A. Innes, on behalf of India, stated that preference would never be accepted in India. He could not commit the Government of India to a policy of preference.

The debate will be continued at further sittings.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 9.—Reuter's Agency learns that there is much gratification in Dominions circles at Sir Philip Lloyd-Greame's announcement that the Imperial Government is prepared to allow all dried fruits, currants and canned fruits in free, while maintaining the duties of 10s. 6d, 2s, and 5s respectively on foreign products. The acceptance by the Impeiral Government of the principle that these Empire-grown products will be admitted duty free is regarded as of first-class significance.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 9.—Mr. Bruce, in a speech at the Economic Conference, suggested the appointment of a Royal Commission, to consider questions and schemes connected with obtaining a market for British and Empire agricultural products and to make recommendations to the present Conference.

Russian Student's Gazette

A special edition of the Russian Students' Gazette just issued carries an article by B. Bekkarevitch, president of the Russian Students' Union, treating with the repatriation of students to their homeland. It is not the wish of these students, he says, to return to Russia with conditions there as they are at present. The wish, however, to carry on their studies and the goal which all appear to be looking toward is America. Two groups of Russian students, the article states, have already left Shanghai for America, and there are about 120 here who wish to join them. The writer states that the passage cost amounts to about $175 and suggests that a loan of $15,000 from some individual or organisation would solve the problem. A promissory note signed by all beneficiaries is suggested, the students to obtain work when they reach the States and thus repay the debt.

Bandits In Africa Defeated By Troops

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Oct. 9.—It is reported from French West Africa that the troops sent in pursuit of the band which attacked a troop of camel corps on September 25 about 80 miles from Timbuctoo, caught up with them to the north of Lake Faguibine. The enemy's position was carried and all the booty recaptured.

Total Property Losses In Japanese Earthquake To Be 5,000,000,000 Yen

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Osaka, Oct. 4.—No official estimate has yet been given out of the total losses caused by the earthquake, but a number of private estimates have been published. Of course many of those estimates are mere guesses, but they are mostly around the 5,000,000,000 yen mark. This may appear at first sight almost incredible, because at the time of the San Francisco earthquake in 1906, all property losses were estimated at only 300,000,000 dollars, but the recent disaster covers a very much wider aera including a number of cities. The destruction of insured property alone is officially put at 2,000,000,000 yen, and this does not include Government-owned property, such as telegraphs, telephones, railways, arsenals and other army and navy property, none of which is insured against fire or earthquake. Therefore, the colossal figure of 5,000,000,000 yen is not altogether imaginary.

Now that the general preliminary arrangements and regulations for the reconstruction of the Capital are completed, orders for various kinds of machinery and material are being placed with the factories of this district, while considerable orders have been or will shortly be placed abroad. This is resulting in this part of the country at least in an increased pressure on the factores concerned, and it is reported that several are preparing to engage extra hands.

Among the orders reported to have been already sent here are those for electrical machinery for the Tokio Electrical Bureau, one for a number of street cars to replace those that were burnt up or otherwise damaged on the streets of the capital, and others for telegraph and telephone wires, railway sleepers and carriages, and different kinds of building materials.

For two or three weeks past one large section of this city, near the harbor, has been taken over for the preparation of timber (of building lengths) for the construction of barracks which are to be erected as rapidly as possible all over the devastated area.

An Imperial Decree provides exemption from, or reduction or postponement of taxes for residents or persons with their occupations in the devastated area.

The decree states that no taxes (land, business, income or succession) usually collected in September, will be collected until after October 31. After that date those taxes will be collected only from those persons who have suffered little or no material damage, while in other cases payment will be further postponed until the question of exemption or partial reduction has been determined.

The loss accruing from tax exemption, reduction or postponement will, it is estimated, amount to a considerable sum, and when it is remembered that the import duties on various necessities and reconstruction materials have been lifted for some months to come, it will be seen that the Treasury will have to look to other sources for the replenishment of its funds.

Rumors are already current, though they may be regarded at present as more or less speculative, of a general luxury tax affecting theaters, entertainments and the like, and enhanced duties on which come under the category of luxuries—liquor, tobacco, toilet articles, silk textiles, etc.

Council Disagrees With Trams Co. On Several Issues

Overcrowding And Railless Line Extensions Dealt With In Letters

Lengthy further correspondence between the Tramways Company and the Municipal Council on the subjects of overcrowding and of railless tram extensions is contained in today's Municipal Gazette.

Correspondence of the company's legal advisers, Messrs. Platt and Co., dated September 17 and 21, indicates that the company has abandoned its contention that the Council has no power to make traffic regulations binding upon it and brings up the matter of gates on the cars and the painting of the number of passengers allowed upon the cars. In reply the Council insists upon the painting of the numbers and points out that if experiments with gates fail to solve the overcrowding problem further expedients must be arranged, such as, if necessary, the increasing of the Tramways staff.

With reference to the railless extensions the company, in earlier correspondence, addressed to the Council a copy of the draft agreement purporting to embody the terms agreed upon in regard to extensions of the system. This draft the Council contends has been extensively modified as compared with the original draft prepared by the Council's legal representative. The alterations, the Council declares, eliminate most of the conditions and restrictions binding upon the company, while all concessions agreed to in respect of these restrictions are retained. Rather than affix the Council's seal to such an instrument, the reply states, the Council would prefer to dispense with the document and rely for record upon the correspondence which has taken place.

Commenting upon a section of the company's letter indicating that orders for material necessary for railless extensions agreed upon have not yet been placed, the Council declares that such failure is incredible if the company is genuinely desirous of proceeding with these extensions.

Kearny Bankruptcy Petition Dismissed

Judge Charles S. Lobingier handed down a decision in the United States Court for China yesterday dismissing the application for bankruptcy by The Kearny Company, Inc., which is headed by Captain L. D. Kearny, the central figure in arms cases now before the public.

In the decision Judge Lobingier said that what was apparently needed was a receiver to wind up the affairs of the concern and distribute the assets equitably among all the creditors, rather than that the assets should be sequestered by a single creditor.

"There is room for a similar organisation in the East, and although it has been talked about for some years, especially since the war, nothing appears to have come about. Another feature of the program was the presence of a figure representing a pig, which had a large representation of a check for $5,000 in one paw and a ballot in the other which read "Vote for Tsao Kun."

GOOD RACING AT KIANGWAN, SOCIAL UNION IN 'RUNAWAY'

Mr. Sassoon's Pony Has Outbreak Of Temper In Steeplechase

KNOLL IS WINNER

Popular Jockey Pilots Two Ponies To Victory

BY WESTA

The hundred and second race meeting of the International Racing Club drew a large holiday crowd to the Kiangwan track, the big new grandstand being well filled when the ponies were doing their stuff, and practically deserted between races, due to the fact that everybody out there was busy trying to keep warm as in following the fortunes of the oat hounds.

As to the results, speaking from the standpoint of those who entertained opinions and were willing to back them with hard cash, it was a day that might be described as neutral. There were no upsets of importance, nor were there any very startling dividends.

The only incident of moment was contributed by Social Union, which qualified for the prima donna class by running away just before the start of the steeplechase. The pony broke away when the field was lining up for the start and ran clear around the track, reverse direction, finally ditching his rider, Mr. Sassoon. Inasmuch as Social Union was the favorite in this race his numerous backers didn't turn any handsprings out of sheer joy when they perceived him kicking their five dollars all over the golf course. Red Pepper won the race by a length from Patapouff, the latter being a foot in front of Micawber when they went under the wire.

There was an exciting finish in the Commemoration Stakes. Mr. Knoll, on The Koulan, drove his mount to a desperate finish with the Meguro entries, Hakone and Takeo, and just managed to nose out the former. Some said that The Koulan, like Spark Plug in his famous race with "O'Brien's Bricks," got the verdict by sticking out his tongue as they went over the line.

There was also a close finish in the sixth race, Charles XII with Mr. Hill up, beating the favorite, Woodcroft, by half a length.

In the Village Selling Plate Mr. Sheng's Membership spreadeagled the field, winning by several lengths, Miss Billy Coutts' First Chance being nearest.

Mr. Knoll won the eighth race on Zoulou, beating Lincolnshire by half a length. Considering the fact that Zoulou had already taken third in the Novices Race this performance was distinctly creditable, and as for Knoll, he must have been riding in plus fours.

Pole Star took the final event, winning by a length from Harbin with Castle Sycee in third place. Ownership was away out in front most of the way, but burned himself out quickly after be began to buck the gale in the stretch. Pole Star paid $64 to win, the best dividend of the day.

The Dog Watch

By Westa

MANY boxing fans in Shanghai, judged by letters received in this office, are very much opposed to the "two minute round" idea that seems to have gained a foothold at the Stadium, and now that arrangements have been completed for Billy's Tingle's first appearance in fighting togs the ring hounds are more curious than ever to know why the pelting parties should be bob tailed. One wag closed a rather indignant inquiry on the subject by asking who put the S.M.C. in the Stadium Smacks—the point, of which will be readily apparent if you let it SIMMer a minute.

Billy Tingle is a three minute fighter, all of his sixty odd battles having been through rounds of the regulation distance. Furthermore it is understood that Bill made an effort to have it stipulated in his contract with the Stadium management that his rounds should be of three minutes' duration. It is also understood that De Dios and his manager have no objection to the man's size stanzas, both having become accustomed to such fighting periods in the Philippines; but that both suggested, when arrangements were being made for the fight, that the battle be limited to ten rounds if the rounds were three minutes long.

Well, then, if both fighters are willing to go the full distance in the matter of fighting sessions who in the name of Sam Hill is stopping them, and why?

That's a fair question, hey!

EFFORTS have been made from time to time in America to speed up boxing contests, and after much experimentation, including the introduction of the two minute round idea in the preliminary (never in the semi-final or wind-up) battles, the promoters hit on the four round scrap as the best means to that end. Hence in many boxing clubs the preliminaries are four instead of six round contests; the rounds, however being kept at the old three minute mark. This has had the desired result in most instances, since it forced the battlers to crowd more action into their allotted time allowance if they hoped to get a decision.

The athletic authorities of the American army and navy stipulate that boxing contests on board ships and in the army camps must be restricted to two minute rounds; but as these are purely amateur contests the ruling can not very well be cited as an excuse for similarly limiting the length of the rounds in professional scraps. The army and navy authorities doubtless were influenced by a desire to avoid the possibility of harm to the enlisted men, or properly speaking, to the boys in the service, feeling not only a sense of responsibility to them but to their parents also.

WHATEVER the reasons that others may have for limiting the rounds to two minutes, such reasons do not apply in the case of professionals. The scrappers who appear in the major bouts at the Stadium are mature fighters; all of them out to win money and distinction in the fighting game. And since all regularly conducted boxing organisations have as yet found no reason for departing from the time honored customs with respect to the Queensbery rules the practice in vogue at the Stadium seems indefensible, for which reason fight fans in Shanghai will not be satisfied until the battlers are forced to travel the full distance.

All agreed say 'aye.'

Contrary 'No.'

The 'ayes' have it!

Fohl, Chance, Mitchell And Bush

Below - Frank Chance and Donie Bush

IN addition to Lee Fohl, who already has been deposed as manager of the St. Louis Browns "for the good of the game and the morale of the team," three other major league managers are likely to be missing next year. Frank Chance, the Peerless Leader, who didn't want to come back into baseball at all, is likely to quit the Boston Red Sox at the end of the season and return to his California ranch. Fred Mitchell will be deposed as manager of the Boston Braves because he couldn't make a ball team out of a lot of bush leaguers. Donie Bush, of the Washington Senators, will be missing because it seems to be the right thing to have a new manager in Washington every year.

Chinese Basketeers To Hold Meeting

The Chinese Basketball League which was so successful last season will hold a preliminary meeting this afternoon at the Chinese Y.M.C.A.

Circulars for this meeting have been sent out by Mr. T. B. Chang, Chairman of the league last year, inviting the captains and coaches of the different teams in Shanghai to attend the meeting which will be called to order at four thirty sharp.

With the growing interest in basketball in the Chinese community it is anticipated that more teams will join the league this year, and it is hoped that Nanyang College which did not play in last year's series will join this year, thus enabling the league to have keener competition.

The meeting today will be chiefly devoted to the election of officers, the discussion of new rules, and some other minor questions.

CHINESE RECS BEAT FUHTAN AS SEASON OPENS

With about 3,000 spectators in attendance the Chinese Recreation Club and Fuhtan College football teams opened the season yesterday afternoon, when the collegians went down to defeat by a 2 to 0 score.

The game was played on the Chinese Recreation Club's ground at West Gate and both teams showed well despite the fact that it was the season's opening match. The Rees, however, showed much stronger and with a bit more combination among the forwards would have added to the score.

The first goal was scored by Lee, inside left, in the first period and the second was netted by Sung in the last half.

Indications are that the Rees, who went through last season with only two defeats, will have another powerful team this year and it is expected that they will go to Hongkong next spring to meet the strong South China aggregations. Mr. A. L. Biggs has been secured as coach.

The Rees are to meet the Customs team next week.

SPEAKERS PRAISE FINE WORK DONE BY NAVY Y.M.C.A.

the structure they were about to dedicate.

THE PRESENTATION

Lieut. T. P. Riddle, Fleet Chaplain, then led the assemblage in prayer, followed by a reading from the Scriptures by Bishop L. J Birney, and then Dr. C. W. Harvey, Senior Secretary, International Committee, made a short address paying tribute to the work of the 'Y' for American sailors and sailors of other nationalities as well.

Mr. Harvey concluded:

"It gives us pleasure on behalf of the Army and Navy Department of the International Committee of the Young Men's Christian Associations to present to the chairman of the local Committee of Management the key to this building as an expression of appreciation of the service which they are rendering and of confidence in the use to which this building is to be dedicated under their management. This purpose is inscribed in bronze in the front of the building—"Dedicated to the development of Christian manhood."

"We hope that this key may never need to be used to lock or unlock the front door but that this building may always be open, to welcome men day or night and that this place may be known as the twenty-four-hour a day home in Shanghai. May this key rather symbolise the fact that this building and the activities here unlock and open doors of opportunity for every man who wears the uniform of the American Naval Service."

ACCEPTANCE

Mr. J. H. Black, Chairman of the Committee of Management, accepted the building on behalf, of the Shanghai community and asserted that it, as the center of the work the 'Y' is carrying on here, would be of inestimable benefit, and dedicated it to the three-fold program of work among the enlisted men of the U. S. Army and Navy in the Orient.

Greetings were then received from President Coolidge, Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, Admiral E. A. Anderson, Commander-in-Chief of the fleet, Rear-Admiral W. W. Phelps of the Yangtsze patrol, U.S. Consul-General Edwin S. Cunningham, Mr. J. Harold Dollar of the American Chamber of Commerce, and Dr. Fong F. Sec, Chairman of the National Committee of the Y.M.C.A. of China. The Rev. C. M. Drury of the Community Church gave the benediction.

Admiral Anderson's speech was as follows:

"I have the honor to read you a despatch from the President of the United States:

"Mr. Lockwood Navy Young Mens Christian Association Corner Hongkong and Szechuen Roads Shanghai I congratulate the Young Mens Christian Association upon completion and opening of its new building at Shanghai China for the special use of the Navy men. The fine spirit of co-operation of your splendid institution is very gratifying. The service you undertake to render is real and I earnestly hope you will have abundant prosperity and success. Calvin Coolidge."

"I am only going to say a few words this morning about the work of the Young Men's Christian Association from the viewpoint of the Commander in Chief of the Asiatic Fleet. The better I have become acquainted with the work of this organisation the more I have found to admire. This organisation has filled a very insistent need of the service, one of supplying a home influence. All of us, from the oldest to the youngest feel a craving for home and, as I say, this institution has filled this more than any other agency we have out here.

WONDERFUL WORK

"What we especially like is that when we come, a hearty welcome greets us when we enter the hospitable doors, and we feel that we are among friends. That means a great deal to the young men. I will not go into the question of the services rendered by the "Y" up at Chefoo, but I will say frankly that without that work I do not know how the Fleet would have carried on. It did everything in the world for the officers and men, otherwise they would have been at loose ends there. None of us like to be prayed over or to be told that we are miserable worms of the dust, but it did not tell us anything of that kind. The "Y" has scrupulously refrained from taking that attitude but they have made their influence felt by the example of blameless lives of noble men and women, and that is the most potent influence. I expect to leave, to haul down my flag for the last time tomorrow and to sail for home, but before going I want to express my grateful thanks for the noble work that this Y. has performed and is still performing. It is needless to wish them success but that is a mere platitude—it is like wishing our own homes success. Of course we wish them success; and I am going to say good-bye to them."

Rear-Admiral Phelps, in his address, also paid tribute to the Y's' work and spoke of the need of a similar institution at Hankow where it would render effective work for the men of the Yangtsze patrol, who, after spending considerable time on the river needed just such a place.

American Minister Schurman sent the following message to the meeting:

"I regret very deeply that on account of imperative official business in Peking I am unable to join you at the opening of the new Y.M.C.A. building which it was my great pleasure to inspect during last May and which aroused in me both admiration and pride. This building will make it possible for the Association to render services of the greatest helpfulness to the men of the Navy and therefore to our country. I extend congratulations to the Association on the larger opportunities which are thus offered and which I feel sure it will enthusiastically accept. In common with all Americans I wish for it the largest and noblest success.

SCHURMAN."

PHELP'S SPEECH

Admiral Phelps' speech was as follows:

"The object of the Young Men's Christian Association in character building manhood has been very eloquently put, but I think we might pause to think that we here are a very small atom if we try to survey all the States of our country where tremendous Young Men's Christian Association buildings are standing today. In every one of those States, in almost all the large cities of those States, we find today standing in the most prominent part of the city a magnificent building dedicated to the building of the manhood of the United States. And I think we do not always appreciate how this tremendous institution has worked in all these years and what it has done; and I believe that what we have today that is good in our manhood is in a tremendous measure due to the Young Men's Christian Association that has been working all these years unobstrusively, quietly, but never going backward.

"But I don't want to speak so much today of that sort of service. I want to speak of a very practical service that the Young Men's Christian Association, especially this Navy Y and its branch at Hankow, is doing for our little force of gun boats which I have the honor to command.

"I think that the finest thing you have in this building is the swimming pool. Now there are two aspects to the value of that swimming pool in my opinion. We have lost two boys up the river this last year by drowning in a turbulent current running up to 6½ knots. An effort was made by one boy who could swim to save his shipmate. He went overboard in this turbulent current not knowing whether he could save his shipmate. This is a fine service which the Y is rendering and I wish more of the men were here today to hear this. It is a humanitarian service as well as one with an economic aspect. The fact that the boy who made this attempt to save his friend went overboard is a tribute to the swimming pool that taught him how to swim. We make it a point in the Yangtsze force whenever we come to Shanghai to send the men here to be taught to swim, and I have given orders that no man will be promoted unless he learns how to swim.

"Now the economic side of it is this: for every man that is taken into the Navy the outlay of the Navy Department, the tax payers' money, stands for his improvement, his outfit of clothing and his preliminary training. When you send that man to sea the government has a right to a return for the use of that money. If he refuses to learn to swim there is a loss on the investment, so I say it is the duty of every man to learn to swim, and these pools should be used every day by details of men from morning to night. We, belonging to the Yangtsze Force are much like the poor, you have us always with you. We stay up the river during the summer with the temperature at body heat with stuffy living quarters. It is very hard on the men. We need at Hankow a building with two stories for dormitories where our men can go ashore and sleep under mosquito netting and on cots. We need a secretary. We need to start in a small way and we do not need a large building like this, but so long as we are going to maintain our control on the river you must not forget all those lads who are on the river summer and winter while the rest of you go up to the seashore and have a better climate summer and winter. So I hope one of the things which comes out of the inauguration of this building will be a Hankow branch on a firmer basis so that our men up the river can be as well cared for as they have been at Chefoo and Shanghai.

Commander G. Losto Moon represented the British Navy; Commissioner of Foreign Affairs Hsu Yuan represented Governor Chi of Kiangsu; Lt. Commander K. H. Su represented the Chinese Navy, and Mr. Walter Chen represented Admiral Tu, Commander-in-Chief of the Chinese Navy personally.

Gifts were received from the Military Governor of Kiangsu, General Ho Fong-lin, Commissioner of Foreign Affairs Hsu Yuan, and Magistrate P. C. Sung.

Japan's Credit Is High As Ever, Counsellor To British Embassy Says

Sir Edward Crowe Urges British Industries To Send Agents To Obtain Share In Big Business In Nippon

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

London, Oct. 9.—Sir Edward Crowe, the Commercial Counsellor to the British Embassy at Tokio, addressing the Federation of British Industries today on the subject of Japanese reconstruction, said that the loss was not irreparable since Japan's credit stood as high as ever.

There was no reason why a good share of the orders for steelwork and galvanised sheets should not come to Britain but keen competition from America was possible. Motor lorries also provided a good trade opening.

The speaker advocated a scheme whereby the Federation's agents should tour Japan, and remarked that the needs of Japan would be large. The British Government has commended to the Japanese authorities the possibilities of the Trade Facilities Act and the Exports Credit Scheme. He hoped that use would be made of the financial facilities thus afforded.

Mr. Jenkins then outlined the Federation's proposals regarding the organisation of a collective propaganda scheme in the Japanese press on behalf of members of the Federation interested with regard to constructional business.

Osaka, Oct. 4.—The demand has been put forward by the Business Men's Political League that as much publicity as possible should be given to the deliberations of the Capital Reconstruction Commission, the semi-political, semi-commercial body created to advise the Premier, and to lay the plans which the Capital Reconstruction Board is expected to execute. To this demand it would seem that the Premier has at once responded, for a day or two later he told a group of pressmen that he was strongly opposed to secrecy and would frankly announce any plans made by the Government.

There is no doubt that no other question is of such interest to the people of this country as the reconstruction of their capital city, and it is evident that every one wants to know what is going on in the minds of those entrusted with the task.

In the early days after the disaster a considerable controversy was stirred up over the question of the removal of the Capital to another part of Japan, until it was subdued by the announcement in the Imperial Edict that, as the political and economic center of the country and the main source of national civilisation, Tokio remains the national capital.

Today the much debated question is whether an elaborate town-planning scheme or industrial reconstruction should have precedence. There are those who maintain that the first need of the country is the rapid re-building and re-conditioning of her industries, while others assert that the disaster affords the opportunity of laying out an ideal city with wide streets, waterways, open spaces, subway, overhead railways, and a complete drainage system. Various plans have been suggested, and are being considered, calling for a huge expenditure and requiring a period of about ten years in execution, and with no doubt that end in view, regulations were issued prohibiting anything but "barracks" for the next three years.

But the fact is that a considerable number of people are eager to begin the construction of permanent buildings.

It is therefore likely that the plans for the laying out of the city will be hastened, and that within the next month or two the Reconstruction Board will be able to make a definite announcement as to the form the new city will assume.

It was immediately evident after the earthquake that with the question of emergency supplies for the afflicted areas settled, the Government's next most pressing problem would be the transporation and distribution of the foodstuffs clothing, and other daily necessaries for the maintenance of the people through the coming months as well as of the materials required for the erection of temporary homes. As soon as the need created by the catastrophe arose, offers of assistance poured in not only from every section of the country, but from every quarter of the globe, and steps were immediately taken to despatch relief supplies of every sort and kind to Tokio and Yokohama. It perhaps was not realised at the time, however, that the earthquake had seriously interfered with the means of communication, and that the accommodation both in Tokio and Yokohama for such goods as arrived, and would continue to arrive within the following weeks was severely restricted.

Certainly in the early days of the disaster both the Navy and the Army rendered inestimable and necessary assistance in rushing provisions to the refugees in greatest need of relief, but since the Government has had to depend more and more on the normal means of distribution, the difficulties created by the break-up of the communications have become more apparent. It is now reported that the supplies of perishable foodstuffs are so abundant that extra storage is immediately required, or the goods themselves must be shipped back to the districts from which they have been sent.

The Relief Bureau has also on hand a large supply of other articles than foodstuffs which have been sent in for relief purposes, but which do not properly belong to the category of "Immediate Relief" These articles, it is proposed, shall be sold to the different business guilds which will be allowed to retail them at a reasonable profit to the general public.

The idea of removing the Tokio Imperial University to a more suitable locality seems to find increasing favor among the professors and the students, in view of the fact that as the result of a recent conference arranged by the Students' Association, a general committee, composed of five representatives from each department, has been appointed to examine the question of removal in all its aspects.

Another School Poisoning Case

The Chinese papers report that about 300 boys and 50 girls attending the Wuchang Government Normal School suddenly became ill after having breakfast last Wednesday morning. An investigation was conducted which traced the cause to the food served. No serious consequences are expected as all the pupils are reported to be recovering.

Crippled Boy Starts First Harding Memorial

WILLIAM Chestey McDonald has been strapped to a board in a sanitarium in Atlantic City, N. J., for five years, with the prospect that he will spend his frail life in that posture. A year ago, when President Warren G. Harding visited the city, he called on the little cripple and tried to cheer him up, for the President loved children. A few days later little Billy received an autographed photograph of the President, which has since been his most cherished possession. When Billy heard of the death of his great friend, he was heartbroken. Now he has proposed—and his proposition has been agreed upon—that the children of America build a memorial to the friend of all children, with their pennies. The memorial is to be built at the coming sesqui-centennial exposition at Philadelphia, and dedicated to Warren G. Harding. Mrs. Winifred Stoner, lecturer and author, who started the ball rolling with a check for $1,000, is shown with Billy, holding the late President's autographed photograph.

-:- An Electrical Utopia -:-

It is a very pleasing picture of industrial and social life in 2023 which Dr. Charles P. Steimmetz, the electrical expert, paints for the delectation of man, at a moment when both industrial and social life seem to be beset with unpleasant perplexities. Curiously enough, the electrical scientist anticipates virtually the same results from the development of his science as the Socialist used to prophesy as the end which would be attained by the universal application of his political program. He sees the work of the world done by people who work but four hours a day. In the view of the electrician, this is to be accomplished by the greater utilisation of mechanical forces, and notably by the extension of electrical invention. The Socialist used to say that the same end would be attained if everybody in the world were made to work, and the leisure class abolished, except for the hours outside the prescribed four hours of productive effort, says the Christian Science Monitor

We are interested, furthermore, in the kind of work which is to be limited to four hours a day which Steinmetz, "the wizard," as the sensational writers like to describe him, thus sets forth:

"When I say necessary work, I mean the kind of work that the average person considers unpleasant, such as being posted at a lathe in a factory, a linotype machine in a newspaper composing room, a bench in a shoe shop, a seat on a delivery wagon, a typewriter in an office or a counter in a department store, in other words, the dull duties of this complex existence."

Seemingly, it is the mechanical laborer and not the brain-worker who is to be relieved under his plan. Speaking purely from a professional standpoint, it would seem that the prospect looks more happy for the composing room than for the editorial department.

Certain collateral results of the great development of electrical science, and its application to domestic and industrial needs, which are set forth by Dr. Steinmetz, are pleasing to contemplate, but the prophecy does arouse certain doubts. No longer are there to be palls of smoke over cities. Streets will be free of refuse. Cheap transportation—when even an automobile can be run from a central station by radio activity—will lead people to live far from the congested city areas. Increasing leisure will cause men to turn from business activities, during their spare moments, to cultivate the soil, and as a result food supplies will be largely increased, and the variety and delicacy of fruits and vegetables multiplied. There will be innumerable Burbanks in those days.

About this time in the program some Single Taxer will raise his voice to inquire whether the extension of electrical activity will do away with the practice of holding land out of use for speculative purposes, and the Socialist, at any rate he of the parlor variety, will inquire whether the mere fact that by radio activity lines of transportation can be more cheaply conducted than under existing conditions guarantees that the fares will be less? Dr. Steinmetz, as purely a physical philosopher, has not yet answered these questions, and yet it does seem pertinent to ask to what extent the masses in the world have thus far profited, in hours and conditions of labor, by the reduction of production costs through the introduction of labor-saving machinery?

It is interesting, however, to find that he does depict a change in the ethical attitude of men toward each other. He believes that,

"In the fellowship and brotherhood of rational human beings, selfish aggrandizement will give way to enthusiastic and wholehearted collective endeavor. The collectivistic tendencies of the Slavic peoples, in my opinion, will make of them the dominant race of the future. . .

"We are at the threshold of an age greater in its significance to the mass of humanity than even the hundred years through which we have passed, miraculous as the fruits of those years may seem to have been. No other period on record or unrecorded history has witnessed such a flowering of man's ingenuity."

It is a pleasing picture thus presented, and that man would be of a narrow and limited intelligence, indeed, who would deny its entire possibility. It is true that at the moment civilisation seems to have received a check, as the result of the discovery by governments that many of the great physical forces, which Steinmetz would use for the regeneration of mankind, could be used for the destruction of men. Yet this is but a passing phase, and one which should not lead to discouragement of any sort. The upward progress of mankind may be in a spiral, with its occasional recessions, but there is still truth and hope in the words of the hymn:

And step by step, since life began.

We see the steady gain of man.

One Year's Immigration

IMMIGRANT aliens to the number of 522,919 entered the United States during the year ended the 30th of last June, according to the figures just released by the Bureau of Immigration.

A number of facts pertinent to the present discussion of immigration restriction are revealed by an analysis of the very complete statistics from which this total is extracted. The first thing, perhaps, to which to point is that this figure of over half a million is the true index of the amount of immigration the country is receiving under the 3 percent law, rather than that law's limit of 357,000. The discrepancy arises, first, from immigration from other American countries which is not controlled by the quota law—Mexico, for example, sent 62,709 of her nationals, and Canada about 30,000; second, from the entrance of persons exampted by law from the operation of the quota act, and, third, from the influx of aliens who, by a short residence in other countries of the American hemisphere, have qualified themselves for admission regardless of quota restrictions. About 80,000 entered in this fashion from Canada alone. An addition of 522,919 aliens in one year offers the United States no small problem in the way of social and economic assimilation and absorption, which the advocates of increasing the quota limits are usually better pleased when they do not have to consider. For this reason they will usually be found arguing for their increase on the 357,000 basis of the law.

Another thing the figures show is that only 83,552 of last year's immigrants were laborers, as against 106,213 skilled workers and 191,585 (including women and children), without any occupation. This ratio shows what a fallacy it is to argue that all of the country's labor difficulties would be solved if all the immigrants who wished to do so were permitted to enter. The percentage of common labor is not unusually low, as records demonstrate; on the contrary, it is well up to the average. As long as only one out of every six immigrants is a laborer, while four of the others have either professions, trades, or no occupation, anything that may be done to alleviate an alleged shortage in common labor by letting down the bars will be effecting far too expensive a cure, because of the much greater proportion of economically unsought immigrants who would necessarily enter at the same time. On this basis, the employers that are crying for unrestricted immigration from the economic point of view would, if they got it, very soon be applying restriction themselves.

Greater prosperity in America from June, 1922, to June, 1923, than from June, 1921, to June, 1922, is reflected in the fact that 213,363 more immigrants entered last year than the year before. At the same time 81,450 aliens emigrated in the 1922-'23 period, so that the net increase in population from this source was 441,469. In the 1921-'22 period, 198,712 emigrants departed, as compared to 309,556 immigrants. The figures as to future permanent residence given by last year's immigrants are striking. New York was chosen by 130,412 immigrants, Texas by 45,198, Massachusetts by 41,602, and California by 39,093, while Illinois, Pennsylvania and Michigan were each selected by more than 35,000. Here is an indication of the trend of immigration that should furnish food for thought to those who believe there is danger in the over-concentration of aliens in any given locality.

The Rainy Days Of Japan

BY FRANK H. HEDGES

Mists curling about the sharp-edged mountains that tower from the sea and gently falling rain from a gray sky seem more characteristic of Japan than does sunshine. Statistics tell the tale of the moist climate of the country, of how one city averages 226 wet days a year and the driest of all has 145 days of rain. The American living in Kyoto or Tokio, where sidewalks are virtually unknown and the streets become veritable lakes of mud, is provoked into believing that the Japanese should adopt as their national emblem the umbrella and the high wooden sandals that raise them above the slushy puddles of the thoroughfare.

The nyubai, the rainy season that comes with the hot weather of June, quickens the life of plants, whose growth from day to day can almost be perceived, but it wilts men. The beauty of the cherry blossom season is a breathless beauty that is grasped hurriedly, for there is always present the consciousness that with the coming of the night a storm may rise with rain and wind that will sweep the delicate pink petals from the branches of the trees. No plans can be safely made in Japan except with a proviso for alteration in case of rain.

And yet, despite the mud and the discomfort of being wet, rain is a thing of beauty in Japan. The wood block prints most prized by the Japanese themselves are those in which rain slants across the face of the picture, or falling snow partially obscures the outlines of buildings and human beings. On a rainy morning every jinrikisha at the corner stand is pressed into use. The little carriages are tightly closed to protect their occupants, but the 'rikisha puller is exposed to the elements.

There are few more picturesque sights to be found than the 'rikisha man of Japan, if he be young and strong. He runs gently through the rain without apparent effort, the 'rikisha trailing behing him. His well-muscled brown legs are bare except where they are splashed with mud. Cloth shoes with rubber soles and with a pocket for the great toe are on his feet. White trunks like those of the college track man of America are topped by a tight-fitting black sateen jacket or by a square-cut coat of dark blue, the emblem of his firm stamped or embroidered on the back. A stiff cap or a wide mushroom hat completes the costume.

Farmers, leading their horses through the streets of the city to the market place, are garbed in rice straw that makes each seem to be a living haystack. Dainty Japanese maidens pick their way through the mud, their outer kimono of dark materials tucked up and showing underskirts of scarlet, saffron or bright blue. Everywhere are oiled-paper umbrellas of Japan, their subdued colors softened even more by the gray rain.

The Presidential Office

BY PUTNAM WEALE

Ever since the Republic was proclaimed in Nanking in 1912 the main struggle in China has been in or around the Presidential Office. There would have been little chance of Yuan Shih-kai accepting the Republic, with the Yangtze Valley well within his grasp at the end of 1911, had not Dr. Yat-sen agreed to surrender to him, immediately after the Manchu abdication, the post of Provisional President, which became another name for a Regency. Later, the whole efforts of Parliament were concentrated on tying up the vigorous first incumbent of the Presidential Chair by means of constitutional enactments—so enraged a man who had long been a general and a viceroy that he began striking out in true vice-regal fashion, shooting people and banishing others, and in the end shutting-up Parliament in the Cromwellian way, although he subsequently accepted the crown which Cromwell had refused. Consequently the Presidential Chair has had a "bad press" from the very beginning, which has not been improved since the great dictator died seven years ago. It is true that no one has since aspired to be anything but a titular Chief; but that in another way has completed the ruin of an office which is more difficult than any Throne to fill just because its duties are so susceptible of different interpretations and because the moods and entourage of the great man are far more important in practice than his constitutional position.

Can anything be done to improve matters; or must it be demonstrated once more in China that with all its faults the system which provides a permanent Chief of State by means of a Crown has not yet been surpassed by system which picks any citizen for the post by means of various forms of voting? The problem is more interesting today than it has ever been before because Europe has been given over to the making of Republics since the War and out of the dozen or more that have arisen not one is entirely satisfied with the compromise in the matter of the Chief Executive which was forced through owing to the bitter rivalry of political parties.

Take the case of Germany. Many Germans wished to establish a Chief of State who could act with the independence and authority of a Woodrow Wilson. The Independent Socialists, fearing a Bonaparte, strenuously opposed this so-called Presidential system. They did not want a President at all but merely a Council of Responsible ministers such as actually exists today in Peking under the name of Governing Cabinet. The final compromise worked out was that the German President, unlike the French President, would be elected not by the national legislative bodies in joint session but by the people. The German President has large powers but practically all of them are exercised through ministers responsible to the Parliament. Under no circumstances can he exercise such regal powers as those enjoyed by the Chief Executive of the United States. He may intervene in the case of a deadlock by submitting the issue to a popular referendum in which all the citizens vote. He can place a check on legislation. But he cannot veto a bill. It is too soon to say whether the system is successful, but it is a radical advance on anything yet attempted, particularly remembering that the old Germany was made up of a number of Federal states dominated by Prussia.

In China the position is even more complicated because of the immense bulk of the country and the lack of contact between the various parts. It is important to remember that while there is important to remember that while there is similarity in outlook and civilisation, the various provinces are so isolated from one another and know so little about Presidential Candidates that for all practical purposes China in political development is not farther ahead than the Eighteenth Century. This need not create despondency since until 1918—and the Armistice, the written Constitutions of Europe were founded on the classic model shaped by the authors of the Declarations of the Rights of Man. In other words, Europe until five years ago was still living according to the principles of French Revolution and the doctrine of laissez faire, which declares that that state is best which governs least and interferes least with individual affairs.

Have we come to this European turning point of 1918 in China when a national conference will repudiate the system of Presidential Elections, hitherto carried out on the hire-purchase system by a needy Parliament, and substitute some new method? How is the relationship between the President and the country at large to be defined in the future now that the high office is left vacant? Will it not be necessary to make yoters and income-tax payers synonymous terms throughout the provinces before stability of any sort can be introluced? These are some of the interrogations that immediately suggest themselves in the light of the latest developments in China, interrogations which cannot be answered until things have moved on much farther than today, but which tend to show that after twelve hectic and tragic years we have no more than the embryo of a Republic in this country.

In America Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are just as well-known and popular as they are in this country. In fact you could hardly find a civilised country in the world where they are not known and praised.

Mrs. Elizabeth Crane lives at No. 360 East Main Street, Rochester, U.S.A. "I was all run down, weak and nervous," said she recently. "I suffered from sour stomach and could not eat anything but broth. I suffered frequently from sick headaches and often awoke at night with stomach distress. There were severe pains in my limbs and I had a backache.

"I saw Dr. Williams' Pink Pills advertised and secured a box. It was a fortunate day for me for I began to improve in a short time. I feel like a different woman now. I sleep and eat well and never have any stomach trouble. I have gained strength and my nerves are much better. I cannot say enough for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for they are the only medicine that never helped me."

For climatic reasons Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold in glass wax-sealed bottles, instead of boxes, throughout the Far East. This helps preserve the unique blood and nerve tonic properties which have made them world-famous as a remedy for stomach troubles, anaemia, nervous debility, rheumatism, the after effects of fever and other diseases, also for the special ailments of women. Dealers everywhere sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, or post free at $1.50 per bottle. $8 for 6 bottles, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 60 Kiangse Road, Shanghai.

Music For The Journey—Heresy Trials

I.

"Songs in the house of my pilgrimage."—Ps. 119:54.

How wonderfully the old Hebrew hymn book has been used.

With the music of psalms the shepherds and plowmen cheered their toil in ancient Palestine; and to the same music the Gallic boatmen kept time as they rowed their barges against the swift current of the Rhone.

St. Chrysostom fleeing into exile; Martin Luther going to meet all possible devils at Worms; George Wishart facing the plague at Dundee; Wicliffe on his sick-bed surrounded by his enemies; John Bunyan in Bedford jail, William Wilberforce in a crisis when his noble plans were threatened with ruin—all stayed their hearts with verses from the psalms.

The Huguenots of Dieppe marched to victory chanting the sixty-eighth psalm; and the same stately war song sounded over the field of Dunbar.

The motto of England's proudest universty is a verse from the psalms; and a sentence from the same book is written above the loneliest grave on earth among the snows of the arctic circle.

It was with the fifth verse of the thirty-first psalm that Jesus Christ commended his soul into the hands of God; and with the same words St. Stephen, St. Louis, Huss, Columbus Luther, and Melanchthon, and many more saints of whom no man knoweth, have bid their farewell to earth and their welcome to heaven.

II.

"Foolish and ignorant questionings refuse, knowing that they gender strifes."—II. Tim, 2:23.

I hate heresy trials.

Most of them originate in envy, malice and uncharitableness.

Some of them beget new heresies.

None of them lends any new strength to the truth or gives any new impulse to the practice of religion.

So far as I know, there is no trial for heresy recorded in the New Testament.

But there were trials for dishonesty and un-Christian conduct and bad behavior.

These are the real heresies.

Even the apostles differed in their opinions and in their ways of stating them.

St. Paul might have called St. James heretical.

But he never did—because they both loved and followed Christ.

EXTRACT FROM EXPERT REPORT:

"Having visited most of the cement factories of Great Britain, America and Europe, I am in a position to form an opinion of the relative merits and faults of each.....but my experiences lead me to the conclusion that 'pride of place' must unquestionably be given to the Holderbank Factory in Switzerland .....In design and construction it is a model without rival in any country." W. H. Brown, A. M. I. Mech. E., leading authority in England on cement manufacturing.

The Wisdom of the ancient Sage and the technical experiences of a modern authority on cement, manufacturing have guided us to instal a set of machinery in our Lungwha Works which is an exact model of the one used by the Holderbank factory, Switzerland, and supplied by the original patentees with numerous latest improvements. The cement we are now supplying our customers is the product of that "perfect instrument."

Telescopes And Planets

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

"What are the principal advantages of a Newtonian reflector against a refracting telescope for astronomical use?

"What would be the approximate magnifying power of a 10-inch reflector having a 9-foot focus and using a good eyepiece?

"About how large would Jupiter, Saturn, and Mars appear when viewed with the 10-inch reflector as compared with the moon, expressed in degrees of arc?—F. M. W., Pittsburgh, Pa."

I am glad to answer these questions because they show a growing popular interest in the use of the telescope. Among people who live in the country or in roomy suburban towns, and cities where the glories of the night sky are not curtained off by the glare of petty terrestrial lights, a small telescope is one of the best of Christmas gifts for a family.

On the too few occasions when in passing a country house, I have seen the yellow gleam of a three or four-inch telescope on the lawn, or porch, I have felt the symbolic power of that instrument as a token of man's interest in a material universe infinitely greater than the earth. Its possession is proof of a wide intelligence.

Answer to Question No. 1—A reflector is superior to a refractor in achromatism; that is, in its ability to bring all the rays of light to an exact, common focus. This a refractor is unable to do because the rays of different parts of the spectrum are unequally refracted (turned from their course) in passing through the glass object-lens. The red rays are less refracted than the blue, so that they come to a focus farther from the object-glass, with the result that the image of the object from which the rays emanate is blurred. By combining glass of different densities in the object-lens this difficulty is largely but not completely overcome.

The mirror of a reflector on the other hand, causes no refraction and the rays of the spectrum are not separated, so that the image shows no false coloring or blurring. For this reason the reflector is much preferable to the refractor for photographic purposes, and nearly all the great photographic telescopes, including the monster 100-inch on Mount Wilson, are reflectors. But this seems to be about the only advantage of a reflector, except that of its greater cheapness. The principal disadvantages are the need of greater care in preserving the optical qualities of the mirror, which some times needs resilvering, and less convenience in handling. Upon the whole, too, the reflector loses more light than the refractor. However, a good reflector, by a first-rate maker, is a fine instrument, and many no doubt would prefer it to a refractor of the same power.

Question No. 2.—The magnifying power of any telescope depends upon the ratio between the focal length of the particular eyepiece used and the focal length of the object-glass, or mirror, which is, of course, invariable. The diameter of the mirror, or object-glass, determines the quantity of light gathered at the focus and this indirectly affects the magnifying power, since every increase in magnification uses up a greater amount of the light by spreading it over a broader surface.

Experience has shown that the extreme magnifying power that can be effectively employed on any telescope is about 100 to the inch of aperature—"aperature" meaning the diameter of object-glass, or mirror. Thus, with ten inches aperture the extreme available magnification would be 1,000 times. But in practice, owing to atmospheric and other causes, this would be reduced to not over 500. For most purposes only 200 or 300 would be used.

To obtain such powers on a telescope of nine feet, or 108 inches, focal length, the eyepiece should have a focal length in inches equal to 108 divided by the desired power. For instance, an eyepiece of half an inch focus would give about 200 magnification. To get a magnification of 500, the eyepiece would have to be very short—about one-fifth inch focus. This would not be easily manageable, but there is a device called an amplifier which renders it possible to obtain high powers without such extremely short eyepieces.

Question No. 3.—The apparent size of a panet depends upon its distance from the earth. Jupiter when in opposition has an angular diameter of about forty-four seconds of arc. With a magnification of forty-two this becomes equal to the angular diameter of the moon. The diameter of Saturn's rings in opposition is nearly the same as that of Jupiter's globe. Mars in opposition has a diameter of about twenty-four seconds and a magnification of seventy-five or eighty makes him equal in angular size to the moon.

LIFE AS IT IS

BY THOMAS L. MASSON

THOSE WIDE OPEN AND QUICKLY CLOSED SPACES

For a great many years I have never been able to park my car in any place that suited my wife. No matter how hard I tried beforehand, somehow she would always select some spot that I didn't see. And so it has gone on until recently, when I made my great discovery.

Lady Astor told me a Scotch story one day which shows up my attitude very well. She said that an old golfer died and went to heaven, and was chatting there with St. Peter when there was a tremendous roar from below.

"Hoot mon!" said the Scotchman, "an' wat's the row below?"

"That, sir," replied St. Peter, "is the petitions ascending up here of all the dub golfers, who, when they were on the links on earth, didn't learn the rules."

"Waal mon," said the old solemnly, "they ken now."

When I first went out in my car with my wife, I never could remember until the fatal moment arrived, that there was any parking difference between us. Suddenly, when it became necessary to make a landing, and I started to poke the car's nose into a convenient space, my wife would grab my arm and say:

"That isn't the right place. Don't you see—go on beyond."

And by the time I had gone on beyond, some fellow with a flivver would sneak in ahead of me. Then the boss would exclaim:

"There! "If you'd gone there first you would have been all right."

By a violent effort of mind over matter, I got so that before I came to a parking place I would smile sweetly and say:

"Now, my dear, you tell me just where you want me to park."

This rule worked fairly well, until I suddenly woke up to the fact that the boss was secretly beginning to despise me for a spineless jellyfish. And so the other day I started to park alone. But the boss grabbed me:

"Don't go in there," she exclaimed, "that's—"

Thereupon, boiling with a kind of cave-man rage, I stepped on it and cried:

"I'm doing this, woman! You keep quiet!" and then, after I had safely parked the car we had both gotten out, she smiled the smile of triumph and pointed to a water hydrant I had backed up against not two feet away!

My discovery consists in my new rule: For, after all these years, I ken now. When you go out in your car with your wife, always let her drive. It's the only rule that works all ways.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent, or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent, or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy and retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse. It causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher guarantees genuine Castoria

"Castoria is good for children and I frequently prescribe it, and always obtain the desired result."

"A medicine so valuable and beneficial for children as your Castoria is deserves the highest praise. I find it in use everywhere."

"Have used your Castoria on various occasions in suitable cases and have found it a painless and efficient laxative, especially in the various diseases of childhood."
CHAS. EDWARD GARDINER, M. D.,

"Your Castoria is a splendid remedy for children, known the world over. I use it in my practice and have no hesitancy in recommending it for the complaints of infants and children."

To Take Civil Governor's Deposition In Kearny Arms Case At Hangchow

or contract to bring it forward in his defence." (3)

"Thus under a statute prohibiting the importation of intoxicating liquors into Alaska" except for medicinal, mechanical and scientific purposes" it was held that the prosecution need not negative the exception because, said the Court, it

"does not either define or qualify the offense created by the statute. The offense designated in the statute is the sale of intoxicating liquors in Alaska. This can be properly stated without any reference to the exception. There is nothing in the exception which enters into the offense condemned by the statute. The exception is purely a matter of defense, which, if relied upon, could readily have been proven by the defendants. A careful examination of the authorities will show that it is only necessary in an indictment for a statutory offense to negative an exception to the statute when that exception is such as to render the negative of it an essential part of the definition or description of the offense charged." (4)

"So in an indictment for fencing public lands, it was held that the government was not required to negative the exception provided in the statute for those who had entered in good faith claiming title. This decision was written by Judge Rose, now of our Court of Appeals, who said

"The real question is whether the proviso is so incorporated with the substance of the clause defining the offense as to constitute a material part of the description of the acts which constitute it. If it is, it is necessary that the indictment should negative the proviso; otherwise the latter is matter of defense to be shown by defendant." (5)

"This qualification has been enacted into statute in Georgia (6) and is applied in the first case (7) cited in the work relied upon by the defense. Another of the four cases cited in said work, viz, the one relating to a prosecution under the Sunday law (8) is contrary to a Missouri case (9) decided nearly half a century earlier, holding that under such a statute it was not necessary for the indictment to contain the negative allegation that the store in question was not kept open for the sale of necessities. Of the two remaining cases, one (10) hold expressly that the burden of proofing the want of a license in the prosecution for the illegal sale of liquor rests upon the defense, while the other (11) is contrary to a New York case (11a) the exception contained in the statute was embodied in the same sentence with the general prohibition and is, therefore, within the rule quoted above, as announced by our Supreme Court.

"It seems to us that the exception invoked by the defence is likewise within said rule. It was not embodied in the original treaty defining the offense nor in the second treaty relating to the same subject. It does not appear until the treaty of 1903 and then is not in the body of the treaty itself, but in an annex (12) which is much more than "a subsequent substantive clause. Not only, therefore, within the doctrine of the Supreme Court but within the rule recognised by the very authorities cited in the work relied upon the exception is one which it is incumbent upon the defendant to prove. This appears to be particularly the case where, as here, no objection was offered to the information itself because of its failure to negative the exception. The motion is overruled."

12.—Annex III, Rule 3, Malley Treaties, 288.

At the conclusion of Judge Lobingier's ruling Mr. Franklin asked that an exception be noted and then proceeded with the presentation of the case for the defense without making an opening statement.

Louis F. Roth and George A. Mayer, star witnesses for the prosecution, testified during the prosecution's evidence that they had attended a tiffin party in honor of Mrs. Kearny's birthday at the Kearny home at which Mr. Franklin and Captain Kearny had talks with them concerning the alleged arms deal and at which Roth received certain instructions concerning his mission to Korea.

Mr. Franklin first called three witnesses who were also present at the tiffin to counteract their testimony in an attempt to prove that such conferences were not held, and in an attempt to attack the creditability of the witnesses.

THE TIFFIN

The Rev. Jay William Crofoot, teacher in a missionary school, was the first defense witness called. He testified that he became acquainted with Captain Kearny when he, on behalf of the Seventh Day Baptist mission, rented Kearny the home he now lives in. He attended the tiffin party in honor of Mrs. Kearny's birthday, he said, with his wife and daughter. Mr. Franklin, he continued, was present at the tiffin but left before the meal was finished. He also said—which denies the statements of Roth and Mayer—that any toasts, even with tea or water, were drunk at the tiffin.

In cross-examination Rev. Crofoot said that he had left before tiffin was finished but that he was still there when Mr. Franklin left.

Mrs. Crofoot also testified that she had attended the tiffin and that Mr. Franklin came in after they had eaten two or three courses and had left before tiffin was finished. No toasts were drunk, she said.

In cross-examination by Mr. Husar, Mrs. Crofoot admitted that despite the fact that Mr. Franklin had came late and gone early a conference might have been held without her knowledge. Concerning the toasts she also admitted that it was not impossible that toasts were drunk without her knowledge but that it was improbable.

"THIRTEENTH CHAIR"

Mrs. Crofoot also gave a detailed account of just where each of the ten guests at the party were seated, explaining that there were three people between Roth and Mayer and that one person was seated between Kearny and Franklin. In cross examination questions Mr. Husar attempted to shake her testimony in that respect by inquiring just why her memory of where each sat was so accurate after four or five months and suggested that she had the details suggested to her by Mr. Franklin, but Mrs. Crofoot refused to be shaken.

Mr. Husar asked whether she had ever seen "The Thirteenth Chair," a mystery play produced in the United States, to which she replied in the negative.

"That," Mr. Husar said, "was a play in which all the characters were seated at a large table. The lights went out and a medium began speaking. Suddenly the lights went on and it was discovered that one of the men sitting at the table had been murdered. It was discovered then that, although an examination was conducted within an hour after the tragedy, that it was extremely difficult for the people at the table to exactly state just where the others at the table had sat in relation to themselves. How is it then that despite the fact that nothing strange or peculiar occured at this tiffin party you remember with such detail just where so-and-so sat?"

Mrs. Crofoot replied that there was no similar physcological effect between the two and explained that she was a housekeeper and that such things as tiffins and parties and just where people were to sit and did sit and the remembrance of such details consequently came to her naturally.

MENTAL TELEPATHY

Miss Anna Crofoot, another guest at the tiffin, was the next to engage in a duel of wits with the District Attorney over her evidence. Miss Crofoot testified that Mrs. Kearny and her Chinese guests were eating at Chinese tables in what was Captain Kearny's office during the tiffin party. Previously Mayer and Roth had testified that Roth had held a conference with Franklin and Kearny in that room.

Miss Crofoot also said that Mr. Franklin had arrived late—after they had eaten two or three courses,—and had left while two or three courses still remained to be served. She likewise corroborated her mother's and father's testimony that no toasts had been drunk during the tiffin.

Under cross-examination Miss Crofoot replied to Mr. Husar that she had remembered Mr. Franklin's arrival particularly because she had noticed the empty chair near her. Then, she said, she heard an automobile drive up and Captain Kearny had said "Well, here he is." Then, she continued Mr. Franklin, a stranger, entered and was introduced to the other guests.

She remembered Mr. Franklin's departure, she said, because he had remarked to her that he had an appointment to meet Mrs. Franklin downtown at 2 o'clock, and had left before the other guests. Miss Crofoot, answering Mr. Husar, said she saw nothing remarkable in the fact that she remembered details of the tiffin, especially because the party had been rather unusual.

"The people present," she said "were of several different nationalities, and different classes of education."

Mr. Husar next asked several questions concerning the drinking of toasts which ended when Miss Crofoot acknowledged that it was possible they had toasted each other—"If they used mental telepathy!"

CHINESE LAW

The next witness, Mr. Chang, a Chinese lawyer, was called as an expert on Chinese law as he was honorary advisor on legal affairs to Commissioner for Foreign Affairs Hsu Yuan, to Director of Rehabilitation of Chekiang General Lu, to the Chapei Bureau of Works and Taxes, the Chinese Chamber of Commerce, and a teacher in the law school of Soochow University.

Mr. Chang, who proved an entertaining, interesting and keen witness, in reply to questions by Mr. Franklin, said that under the Manchu dynasty the civil governors of provinces had a regiment of soldiers under their direct command and that the civil governors of the present day were equal in rank and status to bygone civil governors. Civil governors today also have the right to maintain and equip a police force, both on land and sea, he said, and in addition has the right to maintain and equip a division (a shih-chang of 12,000 men) for provincial purposes.

NO WRITTEN LAW

So far as he knew, he said, there weer no written laws, no presidential mandates or proclamations, no decisions of the Supreme Court, or other written authority of the question of whether or not civil governors have the right to purchase arms and ammunition. They had the right, he said, because in the provisional constitution under which China is governed—"unless Parliament has passed another one this morning," he interjected—no mention is made that they specifically have no such rights and it is the common law of the land that the old laws prevail unless they have been specifically changed. The powers of the governors, he said, had been handed down by tradition through the ages.

Under cross-examination by Mr. Husar, Mr. Chang admitted that the provisional contitution carries a provision setting out the duties of civil governors, but said that it contained no reference to arms and that where it is not expressly stated that old laws and customs prevail.

Mr. Chang also said that the relations between General Lu at Hangchow and the Peking Government were severely strained. No state of war existed, he said, "but relations are very strained."

Mr. Chang also that if Kearny was appointed an advisor by Governor Chang he should have a written document conveying that authority with the Civil Governor's seal.

NO STIPULATIONS

Mr. Franklin then announced that that made the case for the defense with the exception of cerletter from Commissioner of tain Chinese officials whom he could not call into court. He asked Mr. Husar to join with him in stipulating that Mr. Chang was Civil Governor of Chekiang and also to accept a letter from Commissioner of Foreign Affairs Hsu Yuan concerning Civil Governor Chang.

Mr. Husar replied that he would agree if Mr. Franklin would stipulate with him in admitting other testimony, to wit, a letter which covered all the facts that Civil Governor Chang could testify too.

Mr. Franklin made objections every few words to silence Mr. Husar and finally withdrew his offer of stipulation. Mr. Husar continued, however, and finally asserted that Mr. Franklin, through the agency of the American Consulate-General, had written Civil Governor Chang concerning the case and had received an answer. He had that answer, Mr. Husar said, and he would like to have it admitted in evidence as it thoroughly covered the facts in the case as Governor Chang would be able to testify to them.

Mr. Franklin refused to stipulate anything.

"Like the District Attorney," Mr. Frankin declared heatedly, "I admit nothing in the courtroom. It has to be proved!"

Mr. Franklin then asked that the depositions of Governor Chang and Magistrate Hu be taken and Judge Lobingier ordered the depositions to be taken at the earliest possible moment. Mr. Franklin, Mr. Musar, Special Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Stirling Fessenden and Mr. Peyton-Griffin, Official Court Reporter will form the commission to go to Hangchow to take the depositions.

An Explanation

In reporting the Kearny case on Wednesday morning THE CHINA PRESS carried two paragraphs as follows:

During the verbal excitement Mr. Husar asked Mr, Paul F. Faison, Mr. Franklin's associate, to get on the witness stand if he wanted to testify instead of making aside remarks.

"I'd like to see you on the stand," Mr. Husar said. "I'd like to ask you a couple of questions."

Mr. Husar explained yesterday that he had no idea, in making such a statement, to infer in any way that Mr. Faison was in any manner at all implicated in the
